England and Nicaragua.

Friction, it is learned, is again developing between Great Britain and Nicaragua over the Mosquito coast, which since the early sixties has been a matter of contention between the London government and the Central American republic. It is said that the London authorities once more will protest against any violation of the Zeledon-Wyke treaty of 1850, by the terms of which the Queen agreed to recognize the sovereignty of the Republic of Nicaragua over the country hitherto occupied or claimed by the Mosquito Indians, the British protectorate over this territory ceased and in return the Nicaraguan government pledged itself to assign the Mosquito reservation to the Indians and grant them certain rights of local autonomy. While the negotiations for a Nicaraguan canal were pending during the past few years the British government was averse to pushing the Mosquito question. With the ratification of the Hay-Banau-Varilla canal treaty the London authorities believe the time is auspicious to settle the question with Nicaragua. Accordingly the London government has informally mentioned its intentions to the State Department officials and prepared to convey formal official assurances that it has no intention or desire of asserting any right of sovereignty or protection over the Mosquito territory, but, on the contrary, respects the full and paramount sovereignty of the government of Nicaragua. The sole wish of the British government, it is stated, is to bring Nicaragua to a realization of the treaty obligation she is under to deal with the Mosquito Indians with justice and give to them those rights which Nicaragua promised they should at all times enjoy.

Enveloped in Flames.

Enveloped in flames and pursued by his bride of three days, who was endeavoring to save his life, Eugenio Galindo ran through a six-story tenement house on Mott street, New York, yesterday afternoon and caused a stampede among the 40 families in the building. Followed by the panic-stricken tenants and his wife, the frantic man tumbled down to the first floor of the building, where he was met by a street-cleaner who threw a rubber coat over him and extinguished the flames. Galindo was then taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, where it was said he could not recover. His bride, rendered temporarily insane by the accident, was taken to the institution in the same ambulance. Galindo had tried to start a fire with kerosene, when the oil in the can which he held exploded and the blazing fluid flowed upon his clothing. Screaming with pain, he ran from the kitchen to the bedroom and began rolling on the bed. This had no effect, and then he darted out of the flat, followed by his bride.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident is narrated by John Oliver, of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was all yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters, which I got by the first letter I made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50c, guaranteed at E. S. Leadbeater & Sons' drug store.

Catarrh and Hay Fever.

Liquid Cream Balm is becoming quite as popular in many localities as Ely's Cream Balm. It is prepared in the form of an ointment, and is highly prized by those who have been accustomed to call upon physicians for such a treatment. Many physicians are using and prescribing it. All the medicinal properties of the celebrated Cream Balm are contained in the liquid form, which is 75c. including a spraying tube. All druggists, or by mail. Ely Brothers, 55 Warren St., New York.
